Welcome to my garden. . .

This is essentially still a garden, not a jungle, even if it may partially appear like one in time. From time to time, new things grow and sometimes others are cut back, hopefully becoming more and more beautiful and natural in time. While some articles and exhibits here are rather curiosities or art, others are very straightforward and self-contained presentations of quite specific facts or ideas. In time, some of my thoughts are planned to appear in the form of generally accessible books, initially in German, later possibly in other languages.
